

Jingle writer wins a double

Composer and jingle writer Art Phillips has achieved an unusual award double. In between his jingles he writes scores for films and television programs, and it is in this area that he has re-struck success.

He has just won, for the second year running, a Daytime Emmy Award as the "co-writer of outstanding music composition and direction for a drama series". The series was NBC's Santa Barbara, which is broadcast here by Network Ten.

A Daytime Emmy Award is very different to a Primetime Emmy Award, Phillips hastens to point out.

(The Emmys must have suffered a furcation recently).

Phillips came to Australia from Los Angeles two years ago and set up Art Phillips Productions in Sydney. His Australian jingle credits include Good Start, Peters Farm Yoghurt and Nissan's winter campaign.

He has also written background music for the TV program Neighbours.

His other major musical involvement in Australia was as musical director for Ricky May.
