

Flying Vet music now on disc

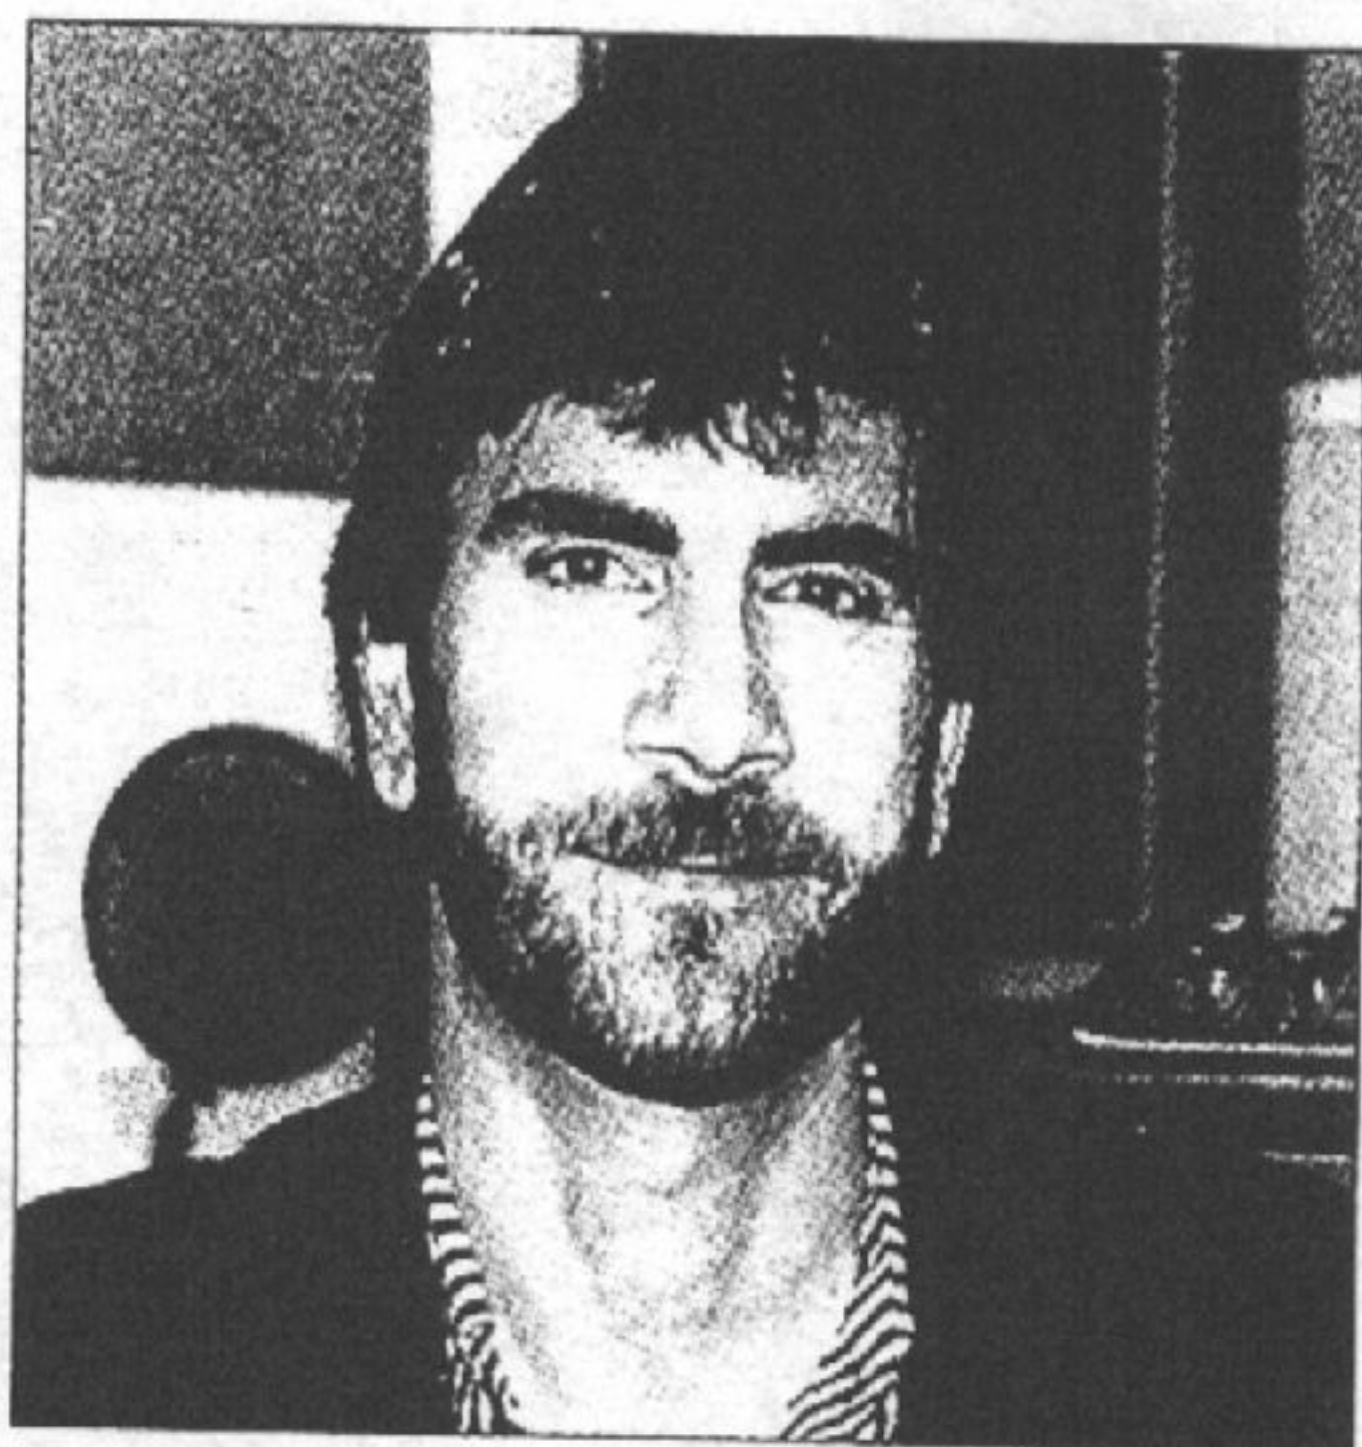

SOUNDTRACK music from the ABC's television series The Flying Vet has been released as a compact disc on ABC Music.

The series is about a real life flying vet, Peter Trembath, who is based at Katherine in Australia's remote Northern Territory with a practice that covers 500,000 square kilometres.

The music for the series was scored and recorded at the Art Phillips Music Studios in Sydney and sought to capture the atmosphere of the outback.

Art Phillips who composed, produced and orchestrated, described the music style as "a cross between Deliverance and Out Of Africa ... meets Mark Knopfler."

Phillips moved to Australia from the US in 1988 and established his own studios soon after.

Sydney-based Art Phillips ... the current vice president of the Australian Guild of Screen Composers is enjoying seeing his Australian audio work being marketed in his US homeland.

The facility is a MIDI suite which is used for the production of advertising, feature film and television drama scores as well as corporate soundtracks.

Phillips has also created library production CDs of contemporary and hi-tech instrumental music using ethnic instruments and flavours of Australia and New Zealand for the US-based Firstcom company. □
